Quality and Product News:

Artichokes: Spring flush is over. Supplies are spotty, & Coke Farms is all but done with Organic 'Chokes; we'll source out different labels/varieties to cover demand as possible.

Belgian Endive Update: Local White & Red Endive supply will be very limited over the next 2-3 weeks. The roots have been weak this year resulting in lower yields. California Endive Farms will be doing work to their facility to correct this. We have some imported White Endive to help cover your needs.

Boysenberries: Expecting limited quantities this week from the Northwest; because Boysenberries are delicate, we're selling per 6x1 pint case.

Figs: Both conventional & Organic are now gapping for 3 weeks before their primary crop starts up (formed on this season's wood), which normally runs through September, weather depending.

Lemons: CA crops finished for the season; supply is limited to start the week. New crop Chilean Lemons due in by end of this week. Very strong market.

Stonefruit Update: Coke Farm's Organic Blenheim Apricots in stock this week, short season. Frog Hollow Organic Yellow Peach varieties this week include both Suncrest & Elegant Lady. Both of these mid-season varieties are free-stone. Also, Farmer Al's Organic Santa Rosa Plums are in stock! Yellow Nectarines will be starting this Tuesday.

Farm Spotlight: Comanche Creek Farm

Jim Miller started Comanche Creek Farms just south of Chico in Butte County. The farm is located in the Northern Sacramento Valley in a riparian area between Highway 5 and 99 where the soil is full of minerals. Butte Creek runs nearby and the overflow has greatly enriched the soil over the years.

The deep-seated philosophy underlying the farm is a great respect for the environment and this has led to the adoption of many organic methods of farming. Jim grows cover crops to aid and maintain soil fertility he uses only natural methods of pest control and recycles natural materials back into the soil.

The initial desire was to grow the best tasting and healthiest produce possible for the Miller family. One year Jim and his family were eating at Mendocino restaurant and knew Comanche Creek tomatoes were much better than what the restaurant was serving. The chef agreed and a business was born.

Experimenting to find the best vegetable varieties (Comanche Creek grows tomatoes, herbs, peppers, squash and melons, as well as other seasonal produce) for the farm lead to the capacity to supply more local restaurants.
